conference at Plaza Hotel.

Dr. Ludwig Erhard, West German Vice Chancellor and Minister of the Economy, concluded yesterday a ten-day visit to the United States. During his stay he took part in an exchange of views on political and economic questions with United States officials.

At a news conference before he left at 3 P. M. by plane for Bonn, Dr. Erhard said he had tried to make it clear that his Government and people wanted German reunification, but only within a framework of genuine freedom and security.

Dr. Erhard said he was returning home with the conviction that the measures taken, and planned by the Eisenhower Government would step up economic activity without unleashing unmanage-
